J. T. Beckwith Says "I Am Not a Candidate" In Large Black Type

"Please say for me in your largest, blackest type, that I am not a candidate," said County Commissioner J. T. Beckwith today. Mr. Beckwith was assured that 8 point was the largest type used in the news columns of the Capital Journal, but an honest statement from any present incumbent that he would not again be a candidate would certainly loom up boldly among the veiled threats to run for office of the small army of 1916 candidates.

Mr. Beckwith was first elected to the office of county commissioner in 1908, and assumed the duties of his office on January 1, 1909. He was reelected in 1913, and his present term will expire December 31, 1916. Mr. Beckwith is a republican and was the official representative from the southern part of the county though he was equally conspicuous in the interests of the county as a whole. His home is at Sidney where he has two farms, a dairy, and large herds of blooded stock that require considerable of his time.

A. N. Libby of Jefferson, B. F. Simpson of Sidney, J. T. Hunt of Sublimity and Mr. Nye of Jackson Hill have all had their best ear to the ground and are being assailed by their best friends to run for the nomination on the republican ticket for the office of county commissioner. So far Art Miller of Jefferson, is the only democrat that has declared his intentions to seek the office.

Seventeen Adventurers Victims of Gold Quest

San Francisco, Jan. 13.—"Seventeen of the poor devils are tottering somewhere in that wild Chilean nowhere, with the poisoned arrows of savage natives through their bodies. And there's a white stick to show where my wife is buried; she was a brave little woman, too, for she took the wheel while a mutinous crew raved. And it was all for gold, the filthy stuff. Here I am penniless, sick—and my wife gone—all for that stuff!"

It was Captain Thomas Owen of the ship Academy speaking. And, as he sat on an old chest in the steerage of the steamer Juan today, he begged his one-year old son to him, while tears started now and then, and trickled down his furrowed face.

Owen was master of the mysterious craft that started from here last August to search for buried treasure in Chile, only to be halted near Buena Ventura, Colombia, by a British cruiser as a German craft. He lost all, but finally managed to escape, on funds furnished by the American consul. He got word of the treasure seven years ago, while cruising in the south. There he lost his men with poison arrows. But he determined on a new expedition.

This expedition was financed by Seattle and San Francisco men.

He gathered a motley crew. They mutinied.

"It was awful," he said. "I had to fight the lazy devils single handed, while my wife with a club stood at the wheel. Well, finally we came off Clipper's island. There had been three mutinies in the meantime. We anchored off the north of Tortogona river. There the crew got drunk and riotous. We had trouble with the Colombian government and soon after a British cruiser halted them. Washington finally got our releases but by that time my wife and seven of the crew had died of the fever."

"And it was all for gold!"

Love-Mad Rejected Suitor Kills Girl and Mother

San Francisco, Jan. 13.—Love mad and rejected in his suit for the hand of Mrs. Margaret Hill Ray, 19-year-old divorcee, Lloyd Peyer, aged 26, shot and killed the girl and her mother, Mrs. D. W. Evans, and fatally wounded the girl's sister, Mrs. Irene White. Then, viewing the ghastly triple tragedy, he turned the gun upon himself and ended his own life.

For some time, the family had been in terror of Peyer. After the party divorced had spurned his offer of marriage, he had threatened to wipe out the entire family, it is said.

On Sunday he had a final quarrel with Mrs. Ray, when she told him flatly she would have nothing further to do with him. The trouble was so violent

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE MILES THAT COULD NOT KEEP FOND HEARTS APART

Miss Dorothy Violet Seymour.

San Francisco, Jan. 13.—(Special.)—The miles that lie between London and San Francisco are as nothing in the path of such love as that which Dorothy Violet Seymour of the exclusive Hyde Park residential section of the London metropolis bears for Rev. Mager McMurray, formerly light weight champion at Oxford and now priest-in-charge of the Church of the Advent in this city.

Miss Seymour, the miles behind her and the song lifting lightly in her heart, arrived in San Francisco from London last week. Rev. Mager McMurray, ill of tonsillitis in the rectory of the Church of the Advent, was unable to meet her personally at the ferry and sent instead, upon that tender errand, Rev. Arch Perin, himself an Oxford man. The wedding will take place immediately after Rev. McMurray's recovery.

It is a romance, in every essential, out of the usual. An athlete of prowess, the young priest won easily the lightweight championship at boxing during his student days at Oxford. Offered a fashionable charge after his assumption of the cloth, he chose instead to work among the slums of London, sans pulpit and sans pew-paying congregation. He spoke from the street corners to the motley crowds. He accepted insults, not in silence, but with retaliatory measures, using his fists every time the occasion demanded. In this way he fought himself into a great popularity and a greater love.

Miss Dorothy Violet Seymour, on a charitable errand to the slums, encountered the young priest while in the midst of one of his daily battles. They met. They loved. His health broke down from overwork and he came to San Francisco and the Church of the Advent some three months ago. And love laughs again—not at locksmiths this time, but at the many miles that lay between London and San Francisco.

Little Princess Still Making Christmas For The Soldiers

(By United Press.)

Rome, Jan. 2.—(By mail.)—Princess Yolande is just finishing her task of playing Santa Claus to all the wounded soldiers in Rome. In the hospitals where this beautiful fourteen year old daughter of Italy's king could not appear in person there are plenty of Christmas reminders of her activity.

For months the Princess Yolande worked with her royal fourteen years of enthusiasm for the Christmas trees for wounded soldiers. Indeed she was chairman of the Christmas tree committee composed of young women of the aristocracy whose thought and cure it was to see that every hospital for the wounded was made bright and Christ-massy. With what fervor the Princess Yolande worked is evidenced by the wonderful Christmas trees laden with gifts which gladden these havens for Italy's brave sons of battle.

The royal family or Italy in a way transferred all its famed domesticity to these guests within their gates, for among the hospitals the one in the Quirinal is regarded as special property of the royal children. When the Princesses Mafalda and Giovanni had birthday celebrations and the Marionette theatre from down town was transferred to the Quirinal, all the wounded soldiers who were able to walk were invited in to see the birthday performance. They gave three cheers for their royal hostesses and the two little princesses were the happiest among them all.

The Crown Prince regards the wounded as his proteges. This Christmas, tinged with sorrow on account of the absence of the King and the horrors of war, was given over to the soldiers. Last year the royal family, noted for its domestic simplicity, was not enlivened at Christmas on account of the serious condition of the Queen. The new princess was born the twenty-seventh of December. This year what they lacked in the intimate home festivities they gained by seeing the King's soldiers happy.

The Christmas trees with the royal princesses playing Santa Claus, bear gifts of cigars or cigarettes, cigar cases, watches, books, chocolate, pipes, handkerchiefs, all sorts of things, most of which the Princess herself selected. Not only the hospital in the Quirinal and the one in the Villa Marguerita where the Queen Mother is playing a real Mrs. Santa Claus to her wounded boys, but in every sanitarium in Rome where the wounded are Christmas cheer and festivity even at this late day, gives a homey feeling to the fellows who are far from their own homes.

In every Italian town and city the same Christmas cheer is reigning, the Christmas trees are glowing for the benefit of the wounded heroes.

And the royal family, the lovely and gentle Queen Helena, the handsome Crown Prince, the Princesses Mafalda and Giovanni are not leaving all the honors to Yolande despite her title of head of the Christmas trees for the wounded committee. Prince Humbert says it's a lot more fun to see the soldiers happy than to be happy all alone.

Marion County People Buy Courses in Mythical "Angelus University"

A number of Marion county people were induced to buy a set of the "Angelus University" by one Otto Nelson who worked here about three months ago. His method was to induce the party taking the course to pay $3 down and then a regular sum each month until the course was paid for. They were to receive a handsomely engraved diploma when they had completed their course of instruction.

Rev. Nelson worked through the communities of Hubbard, Canby, Aurora and Barlow and numerous complaints have come to the office of District Attorney Ringer from the people since the University threatens to sue them if they do not pay up the remainder of their alleged balance due. Mr. Ringer wrote to the chief of police at Los Angeles which is given as the home of the University but so far the Los Angeles detective force has been unable to locate either the building or the campus.

Daniel J. Fry Guarantees To Return the Money If Mi-na Does Not Relieve You.

"It's a pleasure to sell a medicine when my customers come in afterward and tell me how much good it has done them," said Daniel J. Fry, the popular druggist to a Journal man, "and that is why I like to sell and recommend Mi-na, the dyspepsia remedy. The distribution of samples that I made created so much talk and so large a proportion of those who received a sample have bought a box of Mi-na that my clerks have been busy selling the medicine ever since. I have so much faith in this article that I am going to guarantee it in the future, and will return the money to any purchaser of Mi-na whom it does not help. That may seem rash but my customers have said so many good words in its favor that I do not expect to have many packages returned."

"Anyone who has dyspepsia, whose food does not digest well, and who has to take thought as to what he can eat, and when, can leave 50 cents deposit at my store and take home a box of Mi-na and if the remedy does not regulate his digestion and help his dyspepsia he can withdraw his money. I don't know but what we would be willing to pay him interest."

This shows great faith in the merit of Mi-na. It is really a most unusual medicine and the rapid increase of sales since Daniel J. Fry introduced it in Salem shows that it does all that it is claimed to do—relieves dyspepsia, regulates digestion and enables those who use it to eat just what they want with no fear of trouble after.

Too Much Publicity Worries Champion Mole and Gopher Hunter

When the rush to cash in gopher and mole scalp was on after the first of the new year the Capital Journal made note of the fact that Claud Harris, of 1298 South 13th street in this city was the champion gopher and mole slayer of the county. Now Mr. Harris says he needs a stenographer to answer his mail and to date he has received over 150 letters from all over the country asking about his methods of slaying the field pests. Not only from all parts of the state have inquiries been sent in but from the middle west and particularly the Dakotas have come letters from farmers who seek to rid their fields of the gophers and moles who destroy their crops.

One gopher trap manufacturer has presented Mr. Harris with two dozen traps of the kind that he found most successful in his operations and the firm now wants him to go east as their representative to demonstrate the uses of the trap where the gophers, moles and other field pests are most numerous. Mr. Harris has declined the offer, however, as he says he has work to do at home and at this time of the year prefers the Oregon climate to the blizzard swept middle west.

Since the bounty law went into effect Mr. Harris has killed 4065 gophers and moles and received the bounty. On one 40 acre field he killed 630 gophers. The fields on either side of this 40 acre patch had been in clover the year before and last year the gophers all emigrated to the new field to be met with an instrument of traps. In one day Mr. Harris and his son killed 100 gophers. In addition to the 10 cent

LETTER WRITING IS ORDER NEXT WEEK

Thousands Will Be Addressed To People In Many Other States

Everybody is writing them, writing them, and now it is up to the good citizens of Salem to write them. The great letter writing week in Oregon will begin next Monday, when it is confidently expected that thousands of letters will be written by business men, school children, professional men, members of women's clubs, and in fact everybody who can scrape up an acquaintance or remember any one living back east.

The idea is to interest the eastern folks in Oregon and to especially induce them to come this way when doing their traveling. Incidentally, the object of letter writing week is to bring tourist to the state in order that they may later spread the good news of Oregon, and while here, distribute a goodly amount of American dollars.

Recognizing the fact that many are willing to write, but cannot express their ideas, the Salem Commercial club, as well as the Portland chamber of Commerce has prepared a series of letters from which one may take their choice.

Here is one to a business acquaintance:

"When making plans for your vacation next summer, why not consider Oregon? Things have changed considerably within the last few years, and what you have read in the newspapers about the scenic wonders of the state, really tell half the story."

"Of course you have heard of the Columbia highway, which travelers say compares favorably with the famous highways of France. It is well worth a few days' stop in Portland to take this ride, and get an idea what the road builders are really doing out west. You know the best engineers in the world were called in consultation before the Columbia Highway was built."

"An auto trip around Mount Hood is also one of the side trips for Portland and all along the way you will find first class inns for your comfort. If you are ambitious to do some climbing, you will have no trouble in forming a party to climb Mount Hood."

"Salem as you know is in the center of the Willamette Valley, the garden spot of the Northwest. Dr. Hillis said this valley should support 4,000,000 people. There are not quite that many here now, but we do feel that with this wonderful valley, with the mountains on both sides, we can offer you several auto rides that will show you more really beautiful scenery than can be found anywhere on the coast."

Then right near us is Crater Lake and Mount Jefferson, and a day's auto ride brings you to the Pacific ocean.

"Right on top of all this, we have the finest summer climate on earth."

Here is a letter that might be addressed to a friend:

"If you are planning your vacation for next summer, come out this way. We have the finest summer climate in the world. The days are clear and bright in July and August and the nights always cool."

"Beginning with Portland, a week or two can be spent in the Willamette valley. While at Portland, you have the famous Columbia highway, and a trip to the summit of Mount Hood. You don't have to be an Alpine climber to go to the top of Mount Hood. After a few days in Salem, motoring through what is the garden spot of the Northwest, you can spend a few days at Crater Lake, which is really becoming as much of a travelling point as the Grand Canyon of Arizona or the Yellowstone park."

"But the great beauty of this valley for a summer visit is the fact that you cannot realize it is summer. The hillsides are so green and then the forests of pine and fir is something that you folks back east know very little about."

"Anyhow, you folks need to breathe some of this fine Oregon air and until you come out, you won't have any idea about it. Books can tell you little. Make your plans to come direct to Portland and then come to Salem, the capital city, for a few days. You will really be surprised to find there is such a lovely country as the Willamette valley."

Hundred Thousand Dollar Movie Fire

Santa Monica, Cal., Jan. 13.—Thomas H. Ince, director of the New York Motion Picture company, and eight film pictures suffered today from burns sustained when a $100,000 fire destroyed a portion of the big movie plant in Santa Ynez canyon. The blaze is believed to have been caused by an exploding film. Ince and the others were forced to drive through the flames to safety. The film cutting room, general offices, and a large amount of valuable manuscript were burned.

Spontaneous combustion in a pile of oil-soaked rags started a fire in the new Calver City plant of the New York Motion Picture company last night. Frank Elwell, a property man, extinguished it. The damage was nominal.

bounty received from the county Mr. Harris received an additional 10 cent bonus from the farmer upon whose land the gopher was killed. The farmer usually considers that the death of every gopher is worth 10 cents in crops saved and Mr. Harris thus received 20 cents for most of the gophers he has killed.

Why are we popular?—Because we tell you every day, the news of the world.

PUPILS MAY USE TEXT BOOKS IN EIGHTH GRADE EXAMINATIONS

Question to Be Framed So
That Expression in Good
English is Test

In the May and June eighth grade examinations a new plan will be tried in testing the pupils in the subjects of U. S. History and Civil Government, according to a statement issued today by State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. A. Churchill. During the examination the pupils will be allowed to refer to their text books, but the questions will be so framed as to test the ability of the pupil in expressing what he has learned in clear, concise language. The advantages of such a plan are, that it permits the teacher to emphasize the historical events which she considers most important; it gives the trained teacher greater freedom so that she can do a much higher quality of work than simply helping the pupils to "crum" for an examination; it frees the teacher and the pupils from so teaching and studying as to make the examination the end; it tends to give the pupils power of expression and eliminates the memorizing of unimportant dates and facts.

"There is always danger," said Superintendent Churchill, "of the examination system developing a question answer method of teaching. Any plan whereby the examination becomes the end is unpedagogical, and the examination usually deteriorates into a memory test. With this new plan if the teacher will adopt it for the pupils' monthly tests they will learn by the close of the year how to use the text as merely a reference work in writing their final papers. The questions will be so worded that it will be impossible for the pupil to copy any amount from the text book, but he will find help by turning to it to refresh his memory on some point that has escaped him just for the moment. Many pupils finding themselves in this condition when writing on an examination become so nervous and frightened that they fail in the entire examination. This is really the commensurate way to prepare a pupil for his work in life every day world, for if a man has to write an article or prepare a paper on any subject, he does not attempt to depend upon his memory for the proof which he wishes to use from various sources to substantiate his statements; rather, he has on his table a number of reference works dealing with the subject upon which he is writing. The eighth grade examinations, to a very large extent, set the standard for teaching, and I am very confident that this new plan will strengthen the work in the eighth grade and give the pupil much more power and confidence than he gains from the memory tests. If his class standing has been high during the year and his English work what it should be, he will pass a good examination. If his class work has been below par, the open book will be of no help to him during the short hour of the examination."

Martin Elected President of Commercial Club

(Capital Journal Special Service.)
Dallas, Ore., Jan. 13.—A. L. Martin, local manager of the Oregon Power company, was elected president of the Dallas Commercial club for the ensuing year at a meeting of the directors Monday evening. U. S. Longhary was re-elected secretary and Eugene Hayter, treasurer. W. V. Fuller, the retiring president, was elected to fill the vacancy on the board of directors caused by the election of Mr. Martin to the presidency of the club. Mr. Martin has been an earnest worker in the Commercial club since coming to Dallas and during the coming year as head of the organization will do his utmost to promote the interests of the community.

Files Suit for Divorce

Edward E. Bagley has filed a suit for divorce from his wife, Winnie Bagley, alleging that she has willfully disregarded her marriage vows by deserting him in May, 1912 and having lived apart from him since that time. The couple were married in Grants Pass in March, 1911, and have two children, aged three and five years. Mr. Bagley asks that the children be awarded to the defendant.

Fruit Growers Hold Meeting

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Polk County Fruit Growers' association was held in the Commercial club rooms on Mill street last Saturday afternoon and the following officers elected to serve the ensuing year: H. C. Eakin, president; G. L. Hawkins, vice-president; R. M. Ewing, secretary; N. L. Guy, treasurer; the new members of the executive board are G. O. De Haven, F. V. Brown, M. M. Harvey, D. D. Estors, and W. L. Soehren. The present membership of the association is about 50 and it is to be the aim of the organization to try and raise the membership to near the 200 mark before the first next year.

To Open Polk Streams

A petition will be circulated within the next week asking the State Game commission to open the streams of Polk county about the first of April for fishing. The streams were closed last fall by the commission upon the recommendation of the anglers of the county so as to allow an increase in the fish. Each year a large amount of the large fish of the streams have been taken out during the winter months and when the season opened up in the spring very few fish were to be caught. It is hoped that by keeping the streams closed this winter that the fishing will be an improvement over that of former years.

Eight residents of Polk county were awarded their naturalization papers Monday at the opening session of the January term of the circuit court. Many of these applicants had lived in the county a number of years and some of them held public office. To abide by a recent established law, however, requiring voters to be naturalized citizens, a rush for final papers began.
